THE OREGON WEEKLY UNION.

OSKALOOSA, OREGON, SATURDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 10, 1858.

[Article text]

THE MUSEUM.

The Museum of History and Industry.

The new building of the Museum of History and Industry has been dedicated with great ceremony. The building is a magnificent structure, erected at a cost of $250,000. It contains a large collection of historic and industrial specimens, including a mummy from the tomb of Tutankhamun, a model of the Titanic, and a full-sized dinosaur skeleton. The museum is open to the public from 10 am to 5 pm daily.

The Dead Sea Scroll.

The Dead Sea Scroll has been discovered by accident in a cave near the Dead Sea. The scroll contains fragments of the Old Testament, including the Book of Enoch, and is estimated to be 2,000 years old.

[Continued text]

PUBLIC MEN.

The following is a list of the members of the new state government of Oregon.

[List of names and positions]

[Continued text]

[Article text]
THE UNION.
Saturday Morning, Dec. 30.

In the course of the day, the committee appointed for the purpose by the Board of Supervisors, met at the Court House this morning, to determine the locality in which the proposed new market should be located. The question of the market was the subject of a long, heated debate, and was finally decided in favor of the location of the market on the city line. The market was to be constructed on the site of the former market, and the cost of the new market was estimated at $50,000.

The United States government has decided to grant a pension of $100 per month to all veterans of the Civil War who served in the state of Oregon. The pension is to be paid to all veterans who served in the state and were discharged honorably.

A new railroad line has been opened between Portland and Vancouver. The line is 18 miles long and is expected to be completed within three months. The cost of the line is estimated at $120,000.

An earthquake struck Portland last night, causing minor damage to several buildings in the city. There were no injuries reported.

A new bridge has been completed over the Willamette River in Portland. The bridge is 300 feet long and is expected to improve transportation between the east and west sides of the city.

The Oregon State Legislature has been adjourned until next year. The session was notable for the passage of several important bills, including a bill to provide funding for the construction of a new courthouse in Portland.

The United States Senate has confirmed the appointment of William H. S. Clark as the new governor of Oregon. Mr. Clark, a long-time resident of the state, has served as a state senator and as a member of the House of Representatives.

The Oregon State Fair has been announced for the fall. The fair will feature exhibits, competitions, and entertainment, and is expected to attract thousands of visitors from around the state.

The Oregon Supreme Court has ruled in favor of the state in a case involving the rights of Oregonians to vote in their state elections. The court ruled that the state has the authority to set election rules and that the court cannot interfere with the state's sovereignty in this matter.
The New York Herald publishes a description of the Great War in the eastern United States, giving the plans of General Meade for the campaign and the movements of the armies. The report is based on official and reliable sources, and is presented in a vivid and lively style. The Herald is known for its accurate and timely reporting, and its coverage of the Civil War is considered one of the most comprehensive and detailed of any newspaper of the time.

The article also describes the conditions in the towns and cities around the battlefield, including the impact of the war on the local economy and the daily life of the residents. It highlights the challenges faced by soldiers and civilians alike, and the sacrifices made by all sides.

Overall, the article provides a comprehensive overview of the state of the war at this time, and offers valuable insights into this critical period in American history.
TRIUMPH AT HARPER'S FERRY.

The American people are in a state of high excitement over the recent events at Harper's Ferry. The capture of the arsenal has caused great commotion, and the country is eagerly awaiting the outcome of the situation. It is expected that the President will soon issue a proclamation declaring martial law. The government is prepared to take all necessary measures to maintain order and restore tranquility in the District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, D.C., October 17, 1861.

Telegram to the Secretary of War.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authorities are directed to take all necessary measures to prevent the further commission of such offenses.

The President, in the name of the United States, orders the immediate arrest of all persons who may be found in possession of arms, ammunition, or military supplies, and the seizure of all such property. The military authors...
ROYALIST MEETING AT THE ALBANY HALL.

The public meeting of the Royalist and Unionist party, known as the Albany Hall meeting, was held on Wednesday evening. The hall was filled to overflowing with a large and enthusiastic crowd. The meeting was convened by W. H. S. Bishop, who presided over the proceedings. The speakers of the evening included Mr. John A. Macdonald, Mr. John A. Macfarlane, and Mr. Robert N. Maclean.

Mr. Macdonald, in his address, emphasized the importance of maintaining the Union and preserving the principles of the British Empire. He appealed to the settlers to remain loyal and supportive of the Crown, reminding them of the history and traditions that bind them to the mother country.

Mr. Macfarlane followed, speaking about the necessity of unity and cooperation in the face of current challenges. He highlighted the collective efforts required to overcome difficulties and maintain progress in the region.

Mr. Maclean concluded the meeting with a few words of encouragement and a call to action, urging the audience to remain vigilant and steadfast in their support of the Union.

A question and answer session concluded the meeting, allowing the audience to express their thoughts and concerns. The evening ended with a resolution to continue the unity and support of the Unionist principles moving forward.

THE UNION.

Saturday Evening, Dec. 17.

The Committee of Arrangements for the Union meeting held at the Albany Hall on Thursday evening, have decided to hold a special meeting on Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the same place. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The meeting will feature speeches from various representatives of the Unionist party, discussing the importance of maintaining the Union and the challenges facing the region.

The Unionists place a high value on the principles of unity and cooperation. They believe that by working together, we can overcome the obstacles and build a brighter future for our community.

The Unionists contend that the division of the land and the formation of separate political entities would be detrimental to the well-being of the region. They argue that unity and cooperation can lead to greater prosperity and stability.

The Unionists are committed to preserving the Union and ensuring the continued growth and development of the region. They encourage all members of the community to join them in this endeavor and to support the principles of unity and cooperation.

THE UNION.

Washington City, Dec. 17.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Washington University was held on Thursday evening, at the home of President J. Q. Adams. The meeting was attended by the members of the Board and other prominent citizens of the city.

President Adams, in his opening address, expressed his gratitude for the support and contributions of the Board and the community over the years. He highlighted the achievements of the institution and the progress made in education and research.

The Board of Trustees discussed the financial situation of the university and the need for funding to support the growth and development of the institution.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to President Adams for his leadership and dedication to the university.

THE UNION.

Washington City, Dec. 17.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Washington University was held on Thursday evening, at the home of President J. Q. Adams. The meeting was attended by the members of the Board and other prominent citizens of the city.

President Adams, in his opening address, expressed his gratitude for the support and contributions of the Board and the community over the years. He highlighted the achievements of the institution and the progress made in education and research.

The Board of Trustees discussed the financial situation of the university and the need for funding to support the growth and development of the institution.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to President Adams for his leadership and dedication to the university.

THE UNION.

Washington City, Dec. 17.

The annual meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Washington University was held on Thursday evening, at the home of President J. Q. Adams. The meeting was attended by the members of the Board and other prominent citizens of the city.

President Adams, in his opening address, expressed his gratitude for the support and contributions of the Board and the community over the years. He highlighted the achievements of the institution and the progress made in education and research.

The Board of Trustees discussed the financial situation of the university and the need for funding to support the growth and development of the institution.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to President Adams for his leadership and dedication to the university.