CORVALLIS, OREGON, SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 6, 1861.

NO. 44.

Lettres from settlers brought on by the Northern Pacific Railroad. The importance of the railroad to Oregon is great, and it is expected that it will bring prosperity to the state. The Pacific Mail Company is also an important factor in Oregon's future development.

ANNUAL MESSAGE

President James Buchanan.

The President's annual message to Congress is an important document. It outlines the administration's plans and priorities for the upcoming year. The message is expected to be debated and discussed in Congress, and it can influence the direction of legislation and policy.

The Underwood Act.

The Underwood Act of 1891 was a significant piece of tax legislation. It introduced a graduated income tax, which was intended to redistribute wealth and reduce the influence of the wealthy in politics. The act had a significant impact on the American economy and society.

The Chinese Exclusion Act.

The Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882 was a law that banned Chinese immigration to the United States. It was motivated by anti-Chinese sentiment and the desire to protect American jobs. The act had a profound impact on the Chinese community in America and on U.S.-China relations.

The Civil War.

The Civil War was a significant event in American history. It was fought from 1861 to 1865, and it resulted in the abolition of slavery and the reunification of the United States. The war had a profound impact on American society and politics.

The Mexican-American War.

The Mexican-American War was fought from 1846 to 1848. It resulted in the United States acquiring a large portion of Mexico's territory, including California. The war had a significant impact on American expansion and foreign relations.

The Homestead Act.

The Homestead Act of 1862 was a law that allowed settlers to claim land in the United States. It was intended to encourage settlement and expansion of the country. The act had a significant impact on American agriculture and settlement.

The Transcontinental Railroad.

The Transcontinental Railroad was completed in 1869, and it connected the East and West coasts of the United States. It was a significant engineering achievement and had a profound impact on American transportation and economy.

The Kansas-Nebraska Act.

The Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854 was a law that allowed for the establishment of territories in Kansas and Nebraska. It was motivated by the debate over the issue of slavery and had a significant impact on the Civil War.

The Compromise of 1850.

The Compromise of 1850 was a series of agreements that attempted to resolve the issue of slavery in the territories. It included the Fugitive Slave Law, the Wilmot Proviso, and the Mexican Cession. The compromise had a significant impact on American politics and the Civil War.

The Dred Scott Decision.

The Dred Scott Decision was a Supreme Court decision that declared that African Americans could not be citizens and that Congress had no authority to prohibit slavery in the territories. The decision had a significant impact on American society and the Civil War.

The Gilded Age.

The Gilded Age was a period of economic growth and social change in the United States. It was characterized by the growth of big business, the rise of the middle class, and the emergence of the trusts. The Gilded Age had a significant impact on American society and politics.
The Face at the Window.

It was a woman's face I saw in the room; and the woman was a great deal like my mother. She was tall and thin, with brown hair and blue eyes. She was not very old, but she looked very much like my mother. I had seen many beautiful faces during my travels in Europe, but I had never seen a face quite so lovely as that of this woman. Her eyes were deep and warm, and they seemed to reflect her thoughts. I could see that she was a woman of great intelligence and refinement.

The woman smiled at me and said, "Good morning, young man." I was surprised to hear her speak, for I had not expected her to say anything. "Have you come to see me?" she asked. I was a little taken aback, but I answered, "Yes, I have come to see you." She smiled again and said, "I hope you will stay awhile. I have some business to attend to, and I would like to have you here to keep me company." I was happy to obey her, and I stayed with her for several hours. We talked about many things, and I enjoyed her company very much.

I learned that the woman was a writer, and she had written a number of books that were very popular in Europe. She had traveled extensively, and she had seen many things. I was fascinated by her stories, and I listened to her with great interest. She was a woman of great charm, and she had a way of making people feel comfortable and at ease.

When I finally had to leave, she gave me a book of her own writing to read. I was very grateful for the gift, and I promised to read it as soon as I could. I left the room with a feeling of great satisfaction, and I knew that I would never forget the woman who had been so kind to me. She was a woman of great goodness and kindness, and I would always remember her with gratitude.

VOL. 2.

NEW ORLEANS.

Two months, a mother and her daughter, and a boy, were found dead in the streets of New Orleans, for some unknown reason. The bodies were discovered by a passerby, who was shocked to find two young lives ended in such a manner.

INDIAN WARS.

The Indian War in the West continues to escalate, with reports of clashes between the Union forces and Native American tribes. The situation remains tense, and the peace talks seem unlikely to progress.

LETTERS FROM HOME.

Dear [Name],

I hope this letter finds you well. I am writing to tell you about the latest developments in our town. The harvest season has been challenging, but we are managing to get through it. The prices for our crops have been low, which is a concern for our family's finances.

On a brighter note, my brother John has been visiting often and bringing us updates from the city. He says the new railway line is progressing well, and it will connect our town to the major cities. He also mentioned that the city is expanding rapidly, with new businesses and industries opening up.

I miss you terribly and look forward to the day when we can reunite. Please take care of yourself and keep in touch.

Yours truly,

BEAUTY AT BELFAST.

There is a woman in this town.

For three days she had not appeared at the table of the new commercial hotel near the corner of Main and Market streets. (Of course I give no name—Of course I give no hint.) Her name was Miss Fairchild. For the first time, Miss Fairchild was to be seen to-day in the elegant drawing room of the hotel.

The windows of the hotel were open, and there was a breeze blowing through them. Miss Fairchild was sitting on a comfortable sofa, reading a book.

My dear Mr. Jones,

I wish you would come and see me to-morrow at three o'clock. I have a surprise for you.

Yours sincerely,

Miss Fairchild.

The next day Miss Fairchild was to be seen at the hotel. She was sitting on the same sofa, reading the same book.
