The news which we bring for the week was as follows: The Democratic Party, in the House of Representatives, has not yet reached the stage of organizing. The Democratic Party, in the Senate, has already organized, and the bill which they have passed is as follows:

The New Administration

The new administration of President Lincoln is well under way, and the measures which it has taken are already felt. The President has taken steps to secure the peace of the country, and to prevent any disturbances which may arise from the recent changes in the government. The measures which he has taken are as follows:

1. The President has appointed a commission to investigate the causes of the recent disturbances in the country. The commission has been given the power to call for all the evidence which it may require, and to report its findings to the President. The President has also given the commission the power to recommend such measures as it may think necessary for the maintenance of order and the restoration of peace.

2. The President has issued a proclamation declaring that any person who should attempt to obstruct the administration of the laws, or to prevent the people from enjoying their rights, should be considered as a public enemy, and should be punished accordingly.

3. The President has directed the military authorities to take all necessary steps to prevent any disturbance or rioting, and to see that the laws are respected.

4. The President has directed the Postmaster General to take all necessary steps to prevent the transmission of any news which may tend to incite to disorder or rebellion.

5. The President has directed the Secretary of State to take all necessary steps to secure the friendly relations of the United States with other nations.

The action of the President is well received by the people of the country, and is regarded as a wise and necessary measure. The people of the country are determined to maintain the peace of the country, and to prevent any disturbances which may arise from the recent changes in the government.
